

Automotive Defense Specialists Announces New Post about Disputes with the California Bureau of Automotive Repair

Automotive Defense Specialists is a best-in-class team of lawyers skilled in Bureau of Automotive Repair disputes.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, June 2, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Automotive Defense Specialists, a team of professional defense attorneys representing California technicians and auto repair shops, is proud to announce a new post. The post is a renewed dive into the issue of when (and how) to dispute a decision by the California Bureau of Automotive Repair.

"We understand the owner of a SMOG shop and/or auto repair station may not be interested in a fight, but sometimes the fight comes to them. This is normally the issue with the Bureau of Automotive Repair," explained attorney William Ferreira of Automotive Defense Specialists. "It's best to get prepared and potentially call an attorney to help. Having a defense attorney on one's side can change the attitude of the bureaucracy."

TOP ATTORNEYS FIGHT 'THE GOOD FIGHT' IN A BUREAU OF AUTOMOTIVE REPAIR DEFENSE DISPUTE

Here is the background for this release. Handling customer complaints can be an everyday job for auto repair technicians and managers. A car owner could bicker over the price of an auto repair bill or the days it will take to fix the problem. Over time, professional technicians may learn to stop and listen. It can be the right tactic to end an argument and move on. The same attitude may not work in a situation involving a Bureau of Automotive Repair defense dispute, however. The state agency retains lawyers ready to battle against SMOG technicians and station owners and win an argument. Thus, a tech may need the help of a smart defense attorney who knows how to push back. For these reasons, Auto Defense Specialists has announced a new post about the importance of bringing a 'good fight' to a Bureau of Automotive Repair defense dispute.
