The peristaltic pumps market consists of sales of peristaltic pumps by entities (organizations, sole traders and partnerships) that manufacture peristaltic pumps. A peristaltic pump, also known as a roller pump, is a positive displacement pump that moves the fluid at a constant speed regardless of pressure at inlet end and can be used to pump a wide range of fluids. The fluid is stored within a flexible hose or tube fitted inside the pump casing.

Trends In The Global Peristaltic Pumps Market

The technological advancements are shaping the peristaltic pumps market. Peristaltic pumps manufacturing companies are focusing on developing innovative technological solutions for peristaltic pumps with increased accuracy, and ability to pump fluids at low pressures. For instance, in January 2020, a US based Cole-Parmer Instrument Company, LLC launched Reglo Peristaltic Pump Series that are built to be extremely accurate low-flow (100 mL/min) models
