What is IV therapy?

Don't know exactly what IV therapy entails? That's ok, we've got you! You may have had a drip at some point in your life, most likely when you were at the hospital. A drip, also known as intravenous fluids or IV, is a plastic bag that transfers liquids through a tube attached to a tiny needle that is inserted directly into your vein.

We are honored to provide the best IV therapy to Utahns, and we're thrilled to be recognized as the top provider in Southern Utah.”

Heidi Neville, Owner

- Fatigue
- A rundown immune system
- Sports recovery
- Hangover recovery
- Sun poisoning

The majority of these ailments are caused in part due to a lack of circulating nutrients, dehydration and a compromised immune system. Having an IV infusion pumps the necessary vitamins and fluids directly into your bloodstream to give you the boost you need to bring you back to health.

The purpose of IV therapy is to fuel the body with vitamins and fluids that can efficiently replenish and deeply hydrate your body at a cellular level.

The benefits of IV therapy are extensive and have been shown to effectively treat common ailments including:

- Dehydration
- Migraines

Here's why this works. When you're feeling run down, have low energy or struggling with brain fog, it's likely that your body is fighting a harmful pathogen or is unable to effectively flush out toxins. When toxins build up in the body, it can cause inflammation and sickness, prompting an immune response; but if there is a harmful pathogen present, immune function is impaired and your body can't effectively rid the body of sickness.

Consider these additional benefits of IV therapy:

- Intravenously is the most effective way to absorb vitamins and nutrients.
- You feel better immediately after the session, an effect that is enhanced with consistent treatments. You will likely feel clear-minded, energized, and revitalized.
- It's quick! You can do it on your lunch break or between meetings.
- It can be used as part of a treatment plan for many chronic conditions like fatigue, pain, depression, migraines, and others.
- It's a powerful immune booster.
- It's deeply hydrating, working at a cellular level.
- It's customizable based on your symptoms.
- It actually WORKS!
