among Sokin's new football partners, AS Monaco is the first Ligue 1 Partner associated with the company.

8 June, 2021, Sokin, the payments-focused fintech, has announced a new partnership with AS Monaco, who become the latest European club, and the first Ligue 1 Club, to join its growing portfolio of football partnerships.

The three-year deal sees AS Monaco appoint Sokin, a global currency account provider that offers a cutting-edge payments platform, as its Official Global Payments and FX Money Transfer partner.

Sokin will support AS Monaco's international FX and payments needs through its Business Payments product and invest in programmes that increase the club's international presence.

Founded by Vroon Modgill in 2019, Sokin is the first payment provider to enable unlimited global payments for both consumers and businesses for a fixed fee. Headquartered in London with 10 offices around the world, Sokin offers a quick and transparent subscriber platform that opens up global access to FX Money transfers and payments, allowing people and businesses to seamlessly move money in 38 currencies and 200 countries and territories*.

Sokin and AS Monaco sign multi-year partnership deal

Vroon Modgill, founder and CEO, Sokin, said: "We're excited to team up with a prestigious club like AS Monaco to support our business growth ambitions. We're looking forward to working with the club, and its partners, to help create more inclusive and global payment and transfers solutions that can increase freedom to deliver football without financial barriers."

Oleg Petrov, Vice President & CEO of AS Monaco added: "We are very proud to welcome Sokin to the AS Monaco family. This new collaboration is part of our commitment to continue the overall development of the club. We are delighted to be working with this innovative and internationally oriented partner across our whole business. Sokin is already working with several Premier League Clubs, and we are delighted to be chosen as their first Ligue 1 partnership."

AS Monaco join English clubs Everton FC and Fulham FC as Sokin partners, with Sokin also counting global football icon Rio Ferdinand as a lead investor.
