

Prof Krishna N Sharma Proves To Be A Young Intellectual Property Machine

Yielding many success stories, Dr. Sharma demonstrates how to achieve financial freedom through intellectual property investment

NEW YORK, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, June 11, 2021

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Owing intellectual properties, including over 140 books with more than 30 bestsellers, seems like an old-age retirement dream to most authors. Prof. Krishna N Sharma is an individual who has created them at the age of just 35 years.

The young professor hails from the small-town Muhammadabad Gohna, in District Mau of Uttar Pradesh State in India. After earning his professional degrees in India, he moved throughout different countries for further exposure.

Dr. Sharma's prolific record helped him climb the ladder of academics quickly and made him the Youngest Vice-Chancellor in the world (2017). He impressively holds eight world records, all of which are related to intellectual properties.

Notably, Dr. Sharma is the first Indian to develop his own school of thought in

Dr. Sharma cites the six things that motivate him to keep producing intellectual properties: Intellectual Satisfaction, Financial Freedom, Time Freedom, Geographic Independence, Peer Recognition, and Peace of Mind.

“It allows me to travel and spend time the way I want,” he says. “The love I get from the students is icing on the cake.”

Dr. Sharma dedicates most of his time to three major projects: Higher Education Consultancy, Virtued Academy International, and News with Nation (news portal).
