commemorative item, to all county teachers. These coins were distributed as a memento and thank you from the Loudoun County School Board to teachers for their hard work on the front lines during the pandemic. Teachers were confronted with unimaginable challenges and uncertainty daily, with distance learning plans changing multiple times during the school year, social justice upheaval, and the eventual return to classrooms.

While the coin intended to honor teachers for their hard work, many teachers felt the gesture fell short compared to the bonuses granted to school principals and administrators.

WhitbeckBennett supports our educators and wants to show appreciation to our Loudoun County teachers for working and teaching during an unprecedented year.

While the teachers received a commemorative coin, the Loudoun County School Board approved $1.6 million in bonuses to be split among administrators and nurses who worked on vaccination efforts, school principals, and other administrators, as well as nearly $12,000 each for nine cabinet members.

“Our firm believes teachers are worth a heck of a lot more than a challenge coin,” said WhitbeckBennett partner Elizabeth Lancaster. “That’s why teachers who come to our firm during the months of June-August, 2021 will get 25% off their legal matters for the entirety of their case.”
