Development said "We have had a few clients who asked for our help to service specific parts of their business. In the past we had to turn them away or decline the additional engagement. With this added offering and certification, we are now our clients' one-stop-service cloud provider. It will also enable our sales team, led by General Manager, Pia Thompson, to offer our services to an even larger audience of companies with mixed requirements that until now, we could not service 100% of their move to the cloud."

"There are very special instances where workloads have business requirements satisfied only by AWS specific APIs. The combination of the IT Vortex White Glove program and AWS will allow us to better serve our existing clients as well as support a larger audience of clients. Furthermore, this will allow us to offer cloud services such as IaaS and DaaS while leveraging the familiarity of the VMware stack with the reliability of AWS infrastructure" said Tom Ruane, VP Cloud Operations.
