

WeAreDevelopers World Congress celebrates the importance of software developers in a modern society

WeAreDevelopers World Congress is online from June 28 - July 1, 2021 (CEST) gathering software developers & tech decision makers from all over the world.

VIENNA, AUSTRIA, June 25, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Create.Apply.Disrupt

The Viennese tech startup WeAreDevelopers chose the motto "Create.Apply.Disrupt" to gather the global software developer scene to share the latest trends, best practices and discuss the social impact of software development.

For the first time virtual due to Covid, the congress, as one of the world's largest industry events, brings together renowned experts in software development, industry leaders and tech pioneers for a total of four days.

More than 100 speakers and numerous highlights

More than 100 speakers will be featured at the World Congress, including the following highlights:

- Sir Tim Berners-Lee, inventor of the World Wide Web
- Johanna Pirker, researcher for computer games, virtual reality and data science
- Jeff Atwood, co-founder of Stack Overflow
- Kriti Sharma, internationally renowned AI expert
- Tanya Janca, founder of We Hack Purple
- Håkon Wium Lie, inventor of CSS
- Misko Hevery, creator of AngularJS
- John Romero, creator of DOOM, Quake and Wolfenstein
- Kate Stapleton, VP Blockchain Education Network

Topics range from software development, DevOps, quality assurance, artificial intelligence, blockchain, security, to social and societal issues such as diversity, ethics, deep fakes, and sustainability. As part of the innovative online format, attendees will be able to network with each other and connect with brands and companies from all kinds of industries.

“We are the proud partner of the WeAreDevelopers World Congress because developers are critical to innovation and developing customer-ready solutions. This community is part of our core belief in the power of technology to drive the greater good and we are excited to be part of this conference with hopes of welcoming more developers to the Crayon family,” said Crayon CEO Melissa Mulholland.

Tech Recruiting Stage: Trends and Insights in IT Recruiting.

Currently, the skills shortage in the IT industry is a challenge for many companies. To address this problem, the Tech Recruiting Lounge will take place on all four days of the congress from 14:00 to 17:00. The "event within an event", which is specifically geared towards IT recruiting, offers all interested parties the opportunity to get free updates on current trends in IT recruiting.
