Longlands House in the middle of Henley on Thames

Simply- The finest house in the UK I've ever had the pleasure of presenting a wonderful classic fully renovated Georgian Home with guest cottage and ample secure car parking in the middle of town.”

Damion Merry

Built in 1786 the quintessentially Georgian masterpiece maintains features of its period, such as cornice surrounding the high ceilings, focal point replaces, symmetrical sliding sash windows and window shutters. The basement, now purposed as a media room/wine bar, has a secret tunnel to the east chapel of St Mary's Church. Beyond the secure gated entrance to the side of the property and the exquisite medieval brick and int high walls is the two-bedroom guest cottage dating back to the 15th century, although now consisting of contemporary décor it still retains its original beams and ingle nook replace with seven bread ovens.

Each of the five bedrooms of the main house have fantastic views overlooking either the private courtyard or Hart Street. Being situated just 120 yards from the River Thames, the incredible roof top terrace provides perfect viewing of the boats passing daily, some whilst following the yearly Royal Regatta Course.

It is certain that no expense has been spared in renovating this period property; its beauty, charm and location make Longlands House one of the nest homes in the UK.
