features the Top 20 Billboard AC Indicator chart hit single “Remind Me You’re Here” and is a group of honest, transformative songs about when order falls apart. The final chapter of Gray’s new album, Reorder, features the hopeful declaration “Right on Time,” “Glory Days” and the radio single climbing the charts now, “Bring It All.” This part of the album is about coming out the other side of our hardship “as wiser, stronger, more humble and compassionate versions of ourselves.”

Jason Gray

Just because you wouldn’t choose it

Doesn’t mean He wouldn’t use it
Some things are better when they’re broken
You’ll never know until you bring it, you bring it all
(From the “Bring It All” Chorus)

“We’re used to the idea of bringing God our imagined strengths, but what if we brought Him our weaknesses,” shares Gray about the song “Bring It All” in CCM Magazine. “We might be surprised what we find, and it might set us free from beating ourselves up needlessly. It might become part of the gift of who we are.”

Gray is also hosting the widely successful Acoustic Storytime heard on SiriusXM The Message on the second Friday of every month at noon ET. Named after his live album that released in 2008, this monthly writer’s-round radio show recorded at The Well Coffeehouse in Nashville (Brentwood, TN) is sponsored by Compassion LIVE and features performances and stories behind the songs from many well-known Christian artists.
