

D-Tech Awarded Place on Scottish Education Framework

Library technology manufacturer, D-Tech International Ltd, has been awarded a position on the APUC framework for Library Security and Self-Service Equipment.

WOODBIDGE, SUFFOLK, UNITED KINGDOM, July 16, 2021

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Manufacturer of library technology solutions, D-Tech International Ltd, has been awarded a position on the APUC framework for Library Security and Self-Service Equipment until August 2022.

D-Tech's new position on the APUC framework, specifically catered for Library Security and Self-Service Equipment, is further reinforcement of the library technology company's status within the education sector, following their appointment to ESPO framework 350_19 in December 2019 to supply Library RFID Solutions to UK-based public sector buyers over a two-year period.

D-Tech's independent status allows us to offer a range of top value products without having to compromise our creativity, a benefit that is eclipsed only by our excellent customer service.”

James Breakell, D-Tech International's UK Managing Director

APUC, Advanced Procurement for Universities and Colleges, is Scotland's main procurement centre of expertise for all Scottish colleges and universities; the company's core goal is to maximise the value of the country's investment in higher education. This is achieved through APUC's partnerships with various technological and educational institutions, D-Tech thus playing a key role in strengthening the company's service optimisation.

James Breakell, D-Tech International's UK Managing Director, comments:

“Procuring a position on the APUC framework is a great step forward for the company. Our two-
