

Book highlights 7,000 years of yard games from around the world

The World's Greatest Backyard Games by author Matt Grear is the blueprint for this year's tailgate season and summer fun

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS, UNITED STATES, August 4, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Games have been a part of life for cultures dating back thousands of years ranging from the ancient Greeks to the American tailgater of the Internet Age.

Yard games guru Matthew Grear's first book, The World's Greatest Backyard Games ($19.99), is the definitive book on the top yard games from six of the world's seven continents. This encyclopedia of yard games leads readers through the ins and outs of the world's 28 greatest lawn games ranging from classics such as Spain's Caliche and Native American's Cherokee marbles to newcomers such as the U.S.'s Spikeball and Ethiopia's Korbo.

Grear, the founder of Yard Games World, is a yard games addict and spent the past three years researching and writing a guide to the greatest games from around the world. The book was released Tuesday via Prensa Press.

Grear, who broke the world record for longest cornhole toss in June, has turned into a walking yard game over the past few years since launching Yard Games World in Boston. He hosts tournaments. He reviews new games. He researches old ones from around the world. He rents out games, consults for game makers and is even working on creating his own game (top secret for now.)

"Yard games are inclusive. You don't have to be super fit. You don't have to be super athletic. Anyone can play these games," he said. "I want to spread the knowledge about all of the different cultures and what they play out there and also give something new a try. I want people to go outside and enjoy the outdoors."

The book is available in major retailers nationwide.
