

Back Story to Bayer's decision to halt Roundup sales revealed by Island Press author

WASHINGTON, DC, UNITED STATES, August 4, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The recent announcement by Monsanto owner Bayer AG that it will remove Monsanto's Roundup weed killers from the U.S. consumer market by 2023 comes four years after Island Press author Carey Gillam exposed decades of corporate secrets and deceptive tactics Monsanto employed to hide the cancer risks of Roundup and expand its use around the world.

Gillam's 2017 book "Whitewash: The Story of a Weed Killer, Cancer and the Corruption of Science," won the 2018 Rachel Carson Book Award from the Society of Environmental Journalists and is used by several universities for their public health curriculums. Gillam was called to testify before the European Parliament in 2017 about her findings and helped brief U.S. congressional staffers on the issue.

Her recent second book on the topic "The Monsanto Papers: Deadly Secrets, Corporate Corruption, and One Man's Search for Justice" (published March 2021) describes the drama-filled, blow-by-blow back story of the world's first-ever trial pitting a cancer victim against Monsanto in the debate over the safety of the company's Roundup herbicides. The book tells the searing personal tale of plaintiff Lee Johnson and his battle to prove Monsanto caused his terminal disease. The book has recently been optioned for film and television projects.

Corporate powers have attempted to silence and harass Gillam through years of online attacks on her character and credibility and direct efforts to derail her career as a journalist. According to internal corporate documents uncovered through litigation, Monsanto even created a special secret project aimed at discrediting Gillam.

Gillam worked for global news outlet Reuters from 1998-2016. She currently works as a health and environmental researcher at the nonprofit group US Right to Know and as a news contributor to "The Guardian."

Gillam is available for interview and/or commentary. Contact Jaime Jennings at press@islandpress.org.

Founded in 1984, Island Press works to stimulate, shape, and communicate the information that is essential for solving environmental problems. Today, with more than 1,000 titles in print and some 30 new releases each year, it is the nation's leading publisher of books on environmental issues. Island Press is driving change by moving ideas from the printed page to public discourse and practice. Island Press's emphasis is, and will continue to be, on transforming objective information into understanding and action. For more information and further updates be sure to visit www.islandpress.org.

###

['The Monsanto Papers' is] an easy-to-follow explanation of how this litigation unfolded, how the jurors reached their verdict and why Bayer appears to be, in effect, throwing up a white flag now."

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Jaime Jennings Island Press +1 202-232-7933 email us here This press release can be viewed online at: https://www.einpresswire.com/article/548061387

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

© 1995-2021 IPD Group, Inc. All Right Reserved.