The Felix Y. Manalo Foundation and COVID-19

People in many countries have struggled with their livelihood due to the pandemic, and the Felix Y. Manalo Foundation has stepped in to provide aid around the world.

The Foundation has specifically gone above and beyond for the people of San Juan, providing food for families struggling to stay afloat due to economic concerns related to the pandemic.

Typhoon Aid

In addition to pandemic relief, the Felix Y. Manalo Foundation has also provided extensive aid to people in the Philippines who have suffered during typhoon season. People in the town of Mabini have been affected by multiple typhoons, and the Foundation has stepped in to provide essential supplies to those affected. Many people in Mabini were unable to leave their area due to flooding and depended on the help provided by the Foundation to feed their families.

While providing food is an important part of typhoon aid, the Foundation also works to provide families with clean drinking water.
