

eLuma Announces Second Annual eLumaNation Summit

Two-day event held both virtually and in-person to feature sessions by distinguished leaders in education, shining light on education's most important issues

LEHI, UTAH, USA, August 10, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- eLuma, a leading provider of mental health and special education solutions for K-12 schools, is announcing its second-annual eLumaNation Summit. This two-day event, held both virtually and in person on September 30 - October 1 at the Marriott City Center in Salt Lake City, UT, will feature some of the hottest topics in special education from some of education's brightest and most influential leaders.

Attendees can register to join either virtually or in-person here.

"We look forward to hosting our second eLumaNation Summit, and we have a really exciting lineup of speakers and topics that are tremendously relevant and important right now," said Jeremy Glauser, Founder and CEO of eLuma. "Our students need us now more than ever, especially on the heels of a pandemic year. We hope that all who attend are able to walk away with skills that they can immediately implement into their education programs, as well as the insights to help become more focused on best practices that will impact overall student and staff wellness."

eLumaNation is for any educator, administrator, clinician, or individual who wants to learn more about how to continue supporting overall student wellness. The presentations will address topics including supporting the mental health of students and staff, the return to in-person learning, ESSER funding and the American Rescue Plan, social-emotional learning, trauma-informed instruction, MTSS, and ensuring FAPE for all students.

eLuma is excited to feature the following distinguished speakers. More details on the schedule can be found by visiting eLuma's registration page.
