When asked about the secret behind the company's success, Managing Director Chris Brown says, "After spending several years working in the banking, finance and commercial sector, I noticed that there was something missing or a gap in the industry that needed to be filled. There wasn't a company that provided that crucial personal touch customers so badly needed in their search for financial services and solutions. Our company, New Vision Financial Services, has filled that void and continues to do so by offering personalised assistance to all our clients."
