

Huawei Joins The Governing Board Of The OpenChain Project

Huawei has joined the board of the OpenChain Project to align the supply chain behind ISO/IEC 5230, the International Standard for open source compliance.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, USA, August 18, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Huawei, a global leader in technology and open source, has joined the board of the OpenChain Project. Alongside 20 other global companies such as Qualcomm, Google, Siemens and Toyota, Huawei will work to align the supply chain behind OpenChain ISO 5230, the International Standard for quality open source compliance.

"Huawei is delighted to join the OpenChain Project . Huawei adheres open collaboration and innovation, has long been committed to establishing a compliance management system that aligns with industry best practices, and incorporating compliance management into end-to-end business activities and processes. " Wang Yousheng, Director of Open Source & Developer Dept, Huawei. ""Huawei will be an active member in OpenChain Project , hopes through constantly enhancing mutual understanding, cooperation and trust with global developer and open source communities, to build a more secure and trustworthy open source software chain together."

"China is the center of innovation across many types of technology, including open source," says Shane Coughlan, OpenChain General Manager. "Huawei's leadership in this space has helped build bridges across the world. Their decision to join the governing board of the OpenChain Project is further evidence of this, and will be pivotal in taking OpenChain ISO 5230 to the next level. This will benefit every company using open source, a shared undertaking we approach with both excitement and respect."
