Andy Healey, Commercial Officer at GTT.

the Kensington Valley Rebels Youth Hockey Association in Brighton, Michigan. We constantly look for engagement opportunities with local hockey communities. SuperDeker is a revolutionary off-ice training device that helps both new and experienced players develop their stickhandling abilities with patented technology that improves strength, timing, agility, and anticipation. With hundreds of positive reviews across multiple trusted sites, the SuperDeker is a proven part of every hockey player's off-ice training regimen.

The Kensington Valley Hockey Association (KVHA) is a Non-Profit 501(c)(3) Organization offering area youth an opportunity to participate in an exciting, challenging sport while emphasizing camaraderie, sportsmanship, and fun. KVHA provides a competitive environment of development at all skill levels for both boys and girls in the sport of hockey. SuperDeker is providing opportunities for KVHA to raise money through a local charity auction, as well as a coupon code that benefits the association.

“We are proud that SuperDeker will be supporting this association of fine players, coaches, and parents. It is important for us to find opportunities to give back by supporting youth players and community members that love of the game of hockey.” Andy Healey, Commercial Officer at Gambit Training Technologies. “Additionally, if there are other associations that are interested in utilizing SuperDeker to fundraise, they can get information at <https://superdeker.com/pages/hockey-association>”
