Omega fatty acid supplements are increasingly being used due to rising consciousness regarding health. Omega fatty acids are present extensively in fish oils and are vital ingredients to the human body. Omega-3 supplements can help relieve rheumatoid arthritis symptoms and can also be used as dietary supplements or medicinal supplements. Use of Omega-3 fatty acids and Omega-6 fatty acids help to combat diseases and improve cardiovascular health, promote healthy metabolism, reduce pain and inflammation in joints, increase optimal brain function, etc. According to the 'World Health Organization' (WHO), 17.9 million people in the world die every year due to cardiovascular diseases. Therefore, rising consciousness regarding health, especially for heart diseases is expected to drive the market for fatty acids.
