As the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) crisis takes over the world, we are continuously tracking the changes in the markets, as well as the purchase behaviours of the consumers globally and our estimates about the latest market trends and forecasts are being done after considering the impact of this pandemic.

Market Trends:

Rapid urbanization and shifting consumer preferences from traditional roofing materials towards reliable product variants are currently driving the India roofing market. Furthermore, polycarbonate roofing sheets are also becoming popular in industrial and large-scale commercial buildings, as they are easy to install, weather-resistant, have low maintenance costs, etc. Besides this, the growing trend of clear roofing panels in patios and sunrooms is further fueling the product demand in India. Moreover, the increasing prominence of corrugated roofing across garages, sheds, porches, etc., on account of its durability and eco-friendly properties is also driving the market growth in the country. Apart from this, the rising environmental concerns are further catalyzing the demand for zinc-aluminum coated sheets, which, in turn, is anticipated to bolster India roofing market in the coming years.
