When Pratyush Kumar, CEO of FusionStak, reached out to Dr. Mitch Javidi, Chancellor of National Command & Staff College, he knew the partnership would be a win-win for everyone involved. "At FusionStak, LLC, our goal is to create business solutions. CloudGavel is just one example of how we can develop a system to streamline the workflow in a secure environment. CloudGavel Academy will offer courses in administration, leadership, and effective communication so that law enforcement can be more efficient in what they do," he says.

The National Command & Staff College recognizes that this makes every individual a leader within their sphere of influence. Thus, deliberate and effective leadership training is essential. For too long, the concept of leadership was equated only with rank and authority. Now every officer is considered a leader. "Leadership is a verb and not an adjective - Great leaders understand the importance of navigating employees through change while concurrently developing their potential to deliver results with confidence, they do it no matter what." Dr. Javidi adds.

The timing of CloudGavel Academy is perfect as numerous Sheriff Departments, Police Agencies,

National Command & Staff College (NCSC) has produced 17 million hours of on-line training since 2010.
