Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the global cognac market to grow at a CAGR of around 4% during the forecast period (2021-2026).

SHERIDAN, WYOMING, UNITED STATES, August 26, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- According to IMARC Group's latest report, titled "Cognac Market: Global Industry Trends, Share, Size, Growth, Opportunity and Forecast 2021-2026", the global cognac market exhibited moderate growth during 2015-2020.

Cognac is an alcoholic beverage produced by the distillation and aging of white wines. It is distilled twice in copper pots and aged in French oak barrels for a minimum of two years. Cognac is made from a variety of grapes known as Ugni Blanc, Folle Blanche, and Colombard in the Cognac region of France. Cognac offers a more fruitful flavor than whiskey, obtaining its distinctive dark caramel color from the aging in oak barrels and by adding coloring agent.

The global cognac market is primarily driven by the increasing consumption of premium alcoholic drinks, especially among the millennial population. Premium liquor is infused with high-quality ingredients subjected to exhaustive distillation processes and are popular for their fine-tuned viscosity and texture. Cognac is an excellent source of antioxidants and aid in asthma management, stress reduction, diabetes prevention and cardiovascular and bone health improvement, if consumed in moderation. Besides this, the growing appetite for brandy-based cocktails on account of the increasing disposable incomes and improving lifestyle choices of individuals have escalated the demand for cognac. Moreover, the introduction of cognac with different flavors such as vine flowers, toasted bread, vanilla, cinnamon, candied fruits, toffee, spices, and chocolate, is expected to provide a positive thrust to the market growth. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the global cognac market to grow at a CAGR of around 4% during the forecast period (2021-2026).
