Kansas Financial Resources - KFR

The lifelong Topeka team has served the capital city and its surrounding areas with financial expertise while supporting their clients' goals—the focal point of their recommendations and strategies. At the heart of what they do, KFR is a financial advocate for clients helping them build their own financial legacies. This was one of the many reasons they made the move to ChangePath and Client One Securities: to have better access to brokerage and advisory decision-makers that translates into greater options for building client legacies.

The KFR team understands the importance of legacies, firsthand. As Scott works with his son, Eric, to serve more individuals and carry KFR into the next 40 years and beyond. "My legacy is not what I have done for myself, but what I'm actively doing for clients, their families and my son, to be instrumental in helping our clients and the next generation," said Scott, Founder of Kansas Financial Resources.

"Many of their clients become their closest friends, they care about them. It's a core quality that makes them successful and mesh well with the Client One and ChangePath organizations,” Marty Pfannenstiel, President of ChangePath.

Scott’s forward-thinking approach of ensuring his clients’ perspectives of their own future as well as the organization’s are clearly defined. It’s important to establish a leadership team who is relatable and excels at delivering a high level of service.

As part of an increased level of customer service, KFR ultimately chose to join ChangePath and Client One Securities because of their dedication to KFR and its clients. The Midwest value-based firms align with KFR’s client service model, and they have a history of putting clients first. With the size, scale and stability, they provide tangible resources to improve service and continue operating with full transparency.
