“My vision has always been to build an agency rooted in a people-first, purpose-driven approach to help clients get the right message to the right people at the right time. Now with Elevate & Connect, we’ll be able to integrate into our clients’ operations to support their communications needs, from concept to execution,” said Ms. Allen-Belleville, who first launched her career in the high-impact television industry. Ms. Charlin adds, “Throughout my communications career, my primary goal has always been to make a positive impact in the world. By founding Elevate & Connect, we will not only drive exceptional results for our clients, but we’ll also stay true to who we are at our core - an experienced team of communicators dedicated to elevating communities and connecting people in equality, equity, and justice,” said Ms. Charlin, whose work began in the arts and crosscultural communications.

Having a strategic communications operation in the workplace is one of the most important decisions business leaders can make. In addition, with the new reality of many office-based organizations moving to a distributed workforce or a hybrid structure, the need for streamlined communications is more critical than ever. According to Expert Market, miscommunication costs companies with 100 employees an average of $420,000 per year. Moreover, 28% of employees cite poor communication as the reason for not being able to deliver work on time, while 64% of businesses list communicating their 'strategy, values, and purpose' to employees as a key priority.
