Instnt to Launch Instnt Accept™, Showcasing A New Approach To Digital Customer Onboarding

"We are excited to launch Instnt Accept™ and be part of FinovateFall," said Sunil Madhu, CEO and Founder of Instnt. "Today, a variety of self-managed customer onboarding orchestration waterfall approaches are being implemented by businesses in a game of vendor roulette. They are still not better off dealing with the ever-changing landscape of fraud risk than they were a decade ago while losing valuable top-line revenue from good customers that are rejected as a result of the inefficient approaches in place. We believe that there is a far better alternative in using a fully managed customer onboarding service to shift the problem of preventing fraud and loss liability in customer onboarding via a compliant manner: We make fraud losses our problem so businesses can focus on what they do best while creating a frictionless experience for customers."

The people behind Instnt Accept™ are a team of industry thought leaders, technology vendors, and public and private sector professionals headquartered in NYC, dedicated to solving all sides of the customer onboarding problem to help businesses have healthier alternatives to sign-up more—and better—customers.
