Market Trends

Essential oils help in treating cough, bronchitis and other respiratory disorders. A significant increase in the number of individuals diagnosed with respiratory diseases worldwide is primarily driving the demand for essential oils. Besides this, these oils are also gaining popularity as natural flavoring agents in food products, such as candies, confections, pickles, meat and soft drinks. Numerous other applications of essential oils include the synthesis of chemical preservatives, repellents, and edible film coatings, and as odorants in paints and detergents. Furthermore, the escalating demand for increased shelf-life of food products, the minimal addition of preservatives and protection of food from microbial contamination is anticipated to bolster the adoption of essential oils for promoting the safety and quality of seafood, dairy products, cereal-based items, etc.
