September 3, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/

-- According to the latest report by IMARC Group, titled "Collagen Market: Global Industry Trends, Share, Size, Growth, Opportunity and Forecast 2021-2026", the global collagen market exhibited moderate growth during 2015-2020. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to grow at a CAGR of around 5% during 2021-2026. Collagen is the main structural protein present in the extracellular matrix and connective tissues of the body. It is composed of glycine, proline, and hydroxyproline. Collagen provides structure, texture, rigidity, strength, and resilience to bones, skin, tendons, and ligaments. It also slows skin aging, reduces inflammation, relieves joint pain, eliminates the risk of osteoporosis, and boosts muscle mass. Consequently, collagen finds widespread applications in the cosmetic and food and beverage (F&B) industries.

We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.

Collagen Market Trends:

The rising demand for collagen-based supplements represents the key factor driving the market growth. This can be primarily attributed to the increasing prevalence of chronic diseases caused by the insufficient synthesis of natural collagen. Additionally, collagen finds extensive applications in the cosmetics industry as it aids in cell renewals, moisturizing skin, and decreasing wrinkles. The medical and healthcare industries also utilize collagen for plastic and reconstructive surgeries, wound care, bone graft substitutes, and dental membrane. In line with this, the increasing instances of cosmetic surgeries and advanced skin treatments to maintain the skin are supporting the market growth further.
