

Kenny Leahman of KELeahman Consulting LLC to be Featured on Close Up Radio

ASHBURN, VIRGINIA, UNITED STATES, September 7, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Leadership works best when we are our most authentic selves and aligned with our values. Kenny Leahman's story is one of embracing who we truly are.

As a CIA operative for 24 years, Kenny Leahman lived deep undercover developing relationships with potential intelligence assets.

But Leahman actually lived under two covers: he was also a gay Mormon man in the closet to everyone, including his wife and three children.

"I was pretending to be someone I wasn't for work," recalls Leahman, "but then I would come home and pretend to be someone I wasn't there, too. I was terrified every day of my life, in the field, and at home. I was miserable and I couldn't share it with anyone."

Duty-driven and service-oriented, Leahman had an important mission and a great family life to go with it, but it was not aligned with who he really was at his core.

At the age of 47, Leahman decided he could no longer continue living a lie and revealed the truth of who he was to his family and employer.

Today, Leahman brings that same sense of personal integrity to his work as an executive coach, consultant and educator.

"What I have done in my life is to center myself around values-based living and values-based leadership," says Leahman. "My story resonates because we are constantly reinventing ourselves. Leaders need to adjust, adapt and align themselves and their organizations with their values. As a coach, I help people and teams Discover, Decide and Do What Matters.”

Many individuals struggle with allowing others to understand who they really are. Very few people know the pain of that more than Kenny.

“When I discovered coaching, I rediscovered my connection to a mission,” says Leahman. “My mission now is to embolden people to drop cover and live their full personal and professional selves.”

Close Up Radio will feature Kenny Leahman in an interview with Doug Llewelyn on September 9th at 2pm EDT and with Jim Masters on September 16th at 2pm EDT
