-- National Floors Direct explains that quality carpet flooring can last up to 15 years before it needs to be replaced with proper care. Of course, extending the life and luster of your carpet floor as much as possible requires you to follow a few best practices. To help you keep your carpet in pristine condition for many years to come, we'll take a look at a few helpful tips from the flooring professionals at National Floors Direct on how to maximize the quality and lifespan of your carpet floor.

Invest in Entry & Exit Mats

According to National Floors Direct reviews, customers who purchase a water-absorbent mat to place at the entrance to their home experience far fewer issues with water damage. Tracking moisture on wet or snow-covered shoes is one of the primary causes of a water-damaged carpet, making a water-absorbent mat a great way to protect your carpet floors from the various issues that water exposure can cause.

Purchase the Right Carpet Pad

National Floors Direct reviews point out that the carpet pad beneath your carpet plays a vital role when it comes to determining how long of a lifespan your carpet will exhibit. Keep in mind that it isn't just the thickness of the pad you purchase that determines its quality but also its density. According to most National Floors Direct reviews, the best carpet pads are those with a thickness of 3/8 to 1/2 inches and a density/weight ratio of at least 6 pounds.

Go Professional

A good vacuum cleaner and a bottle of carpet-safe stain remover are all you need to keep your carpets clean for general cleaning purposes. Now and then, though, it is recommended that you give your carpets a more thorough and professional cleaning. Hiring a well-reviewed carpet cleaning service is something that many National Floors Direct reviews recommend. If you would like to save a little money, however, renting professional carpet cleaning equipment and taking the DIY approach is another option to consider.

Repair Runs and Snags

Any runs or snags in your carpet should be repaired as soon as possible in order to prevent them from growing even larger. Thankfully, repairing carpet runs and snags is quite simple if you know what you are doing. Start by trying to push the pulled-out loop back down into the carpet using a screwdriver. If it is too big to push back down into the carpet, you can also cut the loop off using a pair of scissors. Next, use either a hot glue gun or a tube of superglue to glue the snag into place. This will hold the snag down and will also prevent it from growing larger over time. For a more professional solution, consider purchasing a carpet snag repair kit and following the included instructions. To find out more, visit National Floors Direct Reviews online.
