the love our visitors have for our city and the fond memories they have of our inhabitants,” said Gonzalo Gonzalez, Mayor of the city of San Miguel de Allende. “Travel + Leisure World’s Best Awards is a leading barometer of the places and companies that satisfy some of the most passionate and discerning travelers, and we want them to know that San Miguel de Allende is ready and welcoming all visitors with international protocols in place to ensure the health and well-being of our population and guests.”

One of the reasons San Miguel de Allende enjoys an enduring reputation with the readers of publications such as Travel + Leisure is its ongoing relationship with the arts and the experiential offerings it provides visitors.

Located in Mexico’s temperate Bajío region, San Miguel de Allende offers spring-like weather year-round. Boasting one of the world’s most well-known “golden hours,” the city has been a longtime popular destination for American expats who came to create all types of art works at the Institute Allende, where art classes can still be taken on a weekly or extended basis.

After years of functioning as an important part of Bajío’s regional textile industry — some of its historical machines and pipes are still on display — La Aurora Factory now houses art studios, jewelry and design stores, antique shops, a couple of restaurants and cafes, and some 50 galleries.

One of San Miguel de Allende’s most popular artworks are the oversized puppets that take part in every celebration in the city and have become commonplace at local weddings. At the Mojigangas 62 shop, you’ll find the local master of the artform, Hermes Arroyo, credited with rebirthing the giant papier-maché figures that sit atop people’s shoulders in local parades and festivals. The store features a packed assortment of unique Mexican handicrafts, but guests should make sure to schedule a class with Arroyo to create their own mini-Mojigangas — a unique souvenir not found anywhere else in the world.

Travel + Leisure World’s Best Awards 2021 is featured in the October issue of Travel + Leisure, on newsstands Sept. 17, and at www.travelandleisure.com. Other Mexican destinations to make the lists are Mexico City, Oaxaca, Merida in the state of Yucatan and Zihuantanejo as Mexico’s Top Cities.
