jurisdictions. In the Latin American region, RoboForex has received an award for the best multi-asset trading platform, the company's proprietary solution named R Trader. In Asia, the Company has been recognised for the best premium trading account, RoboForex's top-of-the-line account Prime.

Nominees and winners of the award are decided by the magazine readers via open vote during the calendar year. Awards can be won by companies of any size from different business segments and jurisdictions, which allows getting comprehensive perspectives on global financial markets.

Robert Stephenson, Chief Business Officer at RoboForex, is commenting: "In Latin America, we won the prize for the Best Multi-Asset Trading Platform. It's a great pleasure for us because precisely this product with exactly these features we were planning from the very beginning. The R Trader platform combines several unique qualities at once, such as a convenient and user-friendly web terminal that can be accessed via any device from anywhere in the world, a huge list of trading instruments that includes over 12,000 units, an opportunity to easily install and customize trading robots without having any programming skills, and many other things. We're really proud of our product and always try to make it better for our clients".

"Asian readers of the magazine highly rated our trading account, Prime, which really offers some of the best trading conditions in the industry. Trading on a Prime account, clients get spreads from 0 pips, a $10 commission for the trading volume of $1 million, and the opportunity to benefit from the leverage up to 1:300. Prime accounts are perfect for algorithmic trading. An increasing amount of our clients use this account type because it helps them to implement trading strategies of all kinds and perform effective trading operations on financial markets", added Robert Stephenson.

About the award

The "Global Banking and Finance Review Awards" was established for companies that are considered top performers in various segments of the global financial community. Every year, awards are presented for innovations, achievements, business strategies, progressive and inspiring changes that occur in different areas of the global economy sectors.
