David R. Koenig, President and CEO of The DCRO Institute

Amy serves as Executive Vice President, Architecture, Engineering, and Construction Design for Autodesk, Inc. (NASDAQ: ADSK). As a member of the executive team, she manages product strategy and execution for Autodesk’s flagship AEC design offerings. agile software development around the globe. She also serves on the board of Pixelworks (NASDAQ: PXLW) and was a co-founder of Linius Technologies, which Autodesk acquired in 2003.

Koenig, President and CEO of the DCRO Institute. "We are thrilled to include her among our alumni and are very happy to see how she will take this knowledge into both the executive suite and the boardroom," he continued.

The Certificate in Risk Governance is awarded to those who have completed an intensive 17-course education program and evaluation. The curriculum is designed for current and aspiring board members who seek to advance the governance of risk-taking at their organizations and those who interact with boards. Taught by some of the world's leading figures in risk governance, the program features lessons by nearly 50 board members, c-level executives, and well-known authors from five continents.

Amy was a member of the DCRO Institute's first guided study cohort for the Certificate in Risk Governance Program. In guided study cohorts, executives and board members collaborate on case studies, address current headline issues, and put into practice the knowledge they gained from the program, all under the guidance of a highly regarded and practicing board member or executive.

"The course material was highly relevant to my role as both an executive and board member. I especially liked framing risk-governance as an opportunity. Risks exist everywhere and managing risk with a focus on opportunity and not just the downside can deliver great value."

Amy Bunszel
