A Digital Artist Who Twists Viewers' Minds with His "Twisted Landscapes"

Nate Hill is a digital artist and freelance photographer from Melbourne, Australia. The artist has a long history of shooting musicians, creating digital artwork and collaborating with famous brands like Apple, Disney, Star Wars, Warner Music and many others. Over his long creative career, Nate has formed a recognizable style that is also called the 'Tiny Planet' technique, which includes photo manipulations and background twisting. Nate almost distorts reality to create a new one - a little planet floating in space. The artist's style is unleashed in all its full glory in his latest collection of artwork called "Twisted Landscapes", including the artwork to be auctioned - "Change of Scenery". Every piece in the collection presents a little planet that looks surreal and out of this world.

The artist started working on the collection while going through tough times. The process of creating art became a meditative practice that helped Nate to distance himself from the worries of today and express everything that bothered him at that moment. With "Change of Scenery" and "Twisted Landscapes" in general, Nate helps viewers arrive at their 'safe space', at least for a moment.

"Change of Scenery" is a twisted picture of Bells Beach in Victoria, Australia. The artist chose this place because it has enormous significance for his family. With photo manipulations, Nate creates an 'alternate reality'-Bells Beach that locals wouldn't even recognize. The artwork

"Change of Scenery" will be auctioned on the NFT STARS marketplace on September 7th at 10:00 UTC. The bidding will be open for 24 hours.
