The demand for glass cleaner is expected to increase as people are now more concerned about hygiene and cleanliness which creates demand for glass cleaners.”

Roshan Deshmukh

Surge in the usage of glass cleaner automotive sector, household purposes, aerospace industry, and other sectors where glass comprises of some portion and rapid modernization leading to smart and modular homes where glass has a major role to play in furniture and decoration are the factors that drive the growth of the global glass cleaner market.

Moreover, rapid growth in commercial buildings such as malls, corporate offices, and showrooms in developing countries like China, India, Indonesia, and Vietnam fuels the demand for glass cleaners. However, basic cleaning solutions, use of alcohol in glass cleaner, and other available substitutes by local manufacturers limit the growth of the market. Innovations in the market are related to non-alcoholic glass cleaners, which come with clean labels and are now highly demanded by consumers.

New products that clean faster and effortlessly have been launched by the market leaders. S. C. Johnson & Son has a wide range of products under the brand name Windex. Windex is one of the most popular glass cleaners in the segment because it has patented ingredients by the company which reacts with the dirt, grease, and other dirt as soon as it is sprayed on the surface and removes most of the dirt before wiping it.

There has been a huge demand for glass cleaner products for household purposes in developing countries owing to increase in disposable income of the people. The Asia-Pacific countries have the highest growing demand thus making Asia-Pacific one of the most rapidly growing markets.
