Trends In The Global Cardiovascular Surgery Devices And Equipment Market

Companies in the cardiovascular surgery devices and equipment market are investing in second generation bioresorbable stents and as well rectifying the glitches which occurred in the earlier version of bioresorbable stents. This advancing segment is poised to garner $247 million by 2025. Due to the all-new device features such as thinner strut thicknesses, faster resorption times, and better radial force, these are expected to grow at a higher growth rate. A higher elective procedure volume due to the less-invasive nature of PCIs when compared to coronary artery bypass grafting is expected to drive bioresorbable stents adoption. For instance, Amaranth Medical has developed three medical devices with thinner strut thickness, latest bearing a magnitude of 100 microns.
