

World Civility Leader, Sir Clyde Rivers Honored to be a King in Ghana

Sir Clyde Rivers, is excited about his new title and position in Ghana, Africa. As the King of Development at Large for Ekumfi-Kudtukwa kingdom.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA, October 11, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Sir Clyde Rivers, is excited about his new title and position in Ghana, Africa. As the King of Development at Large for Ekumfi-Kuotukwa kingdom. Under the Royal name of HRH Okogyeman Obremponnsu Kobina Amissah I. When functioning for the throne. This position for the throne is one that Sir Clyde Rivers, has been working for his entire life and didn't even know it.

The mission of Sir Clyde Rivers for the last decade has been to bring peace and Civility around the world. As the founder and President of I Change Nations, the world largest culture of honor organization in the world. Sir Clyde Rivers has been awarding top achievers around the Globe for there effort to bring peace to their communities, Nations and the World.

"I have always known that peace is one the major components needed for success in any country. The reason I'm excited about this new endeavor as a development King at large is because it gives me a missing component to build stable communities and nations. That missing piece is development. Where there is no peace there's no development and where there's no development there's no peace. Having worked to bring peace and the culture of honor to well over eighty nations. I now have a stable kingdom in Ghana with a Great King Nana Okogyedom Eduah V. To develop a model for the development of Africa". I can now build knowing that the King is on the throne for the rest of his life and that allows long term development, which is different from term limit politics. We are excited to see this next level of development for the Kingdom and Africa.
