

Gesture Recognition Market Trends 2021-26 | Growth, Share, Size, Demand and Future Scope

SHERIDAN, WYOMING, UNITED STATES, October 11, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- According to IMARC Group's latest report, titled "Gesture Recognition Market: Industry Trends, Share, Size Growth, Opportunity and Forecast 2021-2026, the global gesture recognition market reached a value of US$ 9.7 Billion in 2020. Looking forward, the market is expected to grow at a CAGR of 26.2% during 2021-2026.

We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.

Gesture Recognition refers to a Perceptual User Interface (PUI) that captures and interprets human gestures to control devices or applications. It relies on the camera to feed the image data into the sensing device, and the software correlates it with the default gesture library. When the gesture is interpreted, the machine focuses on the execution of the user's instruction. At present, gesture recognition is gaining popularity in virtual reality (VR) and augmented reality (AR) environments to support e-learning.
