Globally, 233 million people have been infected with COVID-19. Research estimates that 1 in 3 people who contract the virus will experience enduring symptoms. This means that millions of people are Long-haulers already, suffering from puzzling and debilitating symptoms that affect multiple systems across the entire body. The long-term effects of COVID-19 are insidious with more than 200 identified symptoms ranging from extreme fatigue, pain, tremors, insomnia & brain fog to neurologic, GI, and cardiovascular distress.

'Long COVID - We Are Here!' raises awareness about the impact of this post-viral epidemic; opens doors for the research/medical community to compel the establishment of an international Long COVID research agenda; advocate for a global repository of resources and treatment strategies; and, urges widespread physician training related to Long COVID.

"We are humbled by the courage of the millions of people who are experiencing Long COVID and are struggling to find help for their agonizing symptoms," remarks Dr. Leigh W. Jerome, Founder, Relational Space. "Many of us have been sick with long COVID for two years and our numbers continue to grow. We are here and we need your help."

This event will occur:

October 21, 2021 (12:00 Noon-1:30 EST)
