

Woligo Partners with Broker Source to Provide Medical Insurance for Self-employed Workers and Small Business Owners

OKLAHOMA CITY, USA, October 12, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Woligo has teamed up with Broker Source, a Cameron Group partner, to offer individual and group medical insurance. Woligo's platform offers a variety of insurance, benefits, banking, and retirement solutions to independent workers and small business owners.

"Small business owners and self-employed individuals are often left to find medical insurance for themselves and their families, since they do not receive traditional coverage from an employer. Small businesses also often want to offer group coverage as a perk for their employees to aid in retention. Medicare and short-term coverage options are also available through this partnership," said Jennifer Dunn, Woligo Venture Manager. "We are excited to offer multiple solutions through our collaboration with our sister company. Our customers will receive agent-assisted quoting, counseling, and enrollment support to ensure they get the best customized policy based on their needs."

"Health insurance is complicated but Broker Source has the expertise and technology to break it down and simplify the process so that it's easier to choose a plan and enroll. With our nationwide carrier connections and excellent year-round customer support we are thrilled to partner with Woligo to provide expanded health insurance options to individuals and small groups across the country," said Ann Moses, Vice President of Broker Source.

Self-employed professionals and small business owners can easily obtain a customized quote by going to www.Woligonow.com. The 2022 Open Enrollment Period (OEP) for Healthcare.gov begins November 1, 2021 and ends January 15, 2022, in most states. Open enrollment for Medicare begins October 15 through December 7. And, groups can shop plan options year round.
