According to IMARC Group's latest report, titled "Disconnect Switch Market Size: Global Industry Trends, Share, Growth, Opportunity and Forecast 2021-2026", The global disconnect switch market reached a strong growth in 2020. Also known as an isolator switch, a disconnect switch is mainly used for de-energizing or cutting off the electric circuit during servicing and maintenance. It finds extensive applications in large industries and power distribution. It comprises an actuator, wired electrical contacts and an enclosure that protects the contents from environmental hazards and prevents the users from getting exposed to the live circuits.

A considerable increase in infrastructural development on account of rapid urbanization represents one of the key factors impelling the disconnect switch market growth. Apart from this, the escalating demand for efficient systems to generate, transmit and distribute electricity is also strengthening the market growth. Moreover, there is a rise in the adoption of low voltage disconnect switches in the aviation, railways, transportation, and telecommunication sectors. This, in confluence with the growing awareness about the importance of maintaining the safety of workers in the electronics and manufacturing industries, is anticipated to fuel the market further. Looking forward, the global disconnect switch market is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.3% during the forecast period (2021-2026).
