Cat food refers to commercially prepared food, made of animal- or plant-based materials, intended for the consumption of domesticated cats. It acts as an excellent source of proteins, fats, carbohydrates, and several other nutrients, such as minerals, vitamins, and amino acids. Cat food primarily includes poultry, meat, fish meal, milk products, fiber sources, grain, etc. Since cats are considered sacred, cheaper, and cleaner to buy and maintain, they are one of the most preferred pets in Saudi Arabia. As a result, the cat food market in the country has experienced sustained growth over the years.

The growing awareness among pet owners about the benefits offered by cat food providing essential nutrients, enhancing immune system, combating skin allergies, promoting healthy skin and a shiny coat, etc., is augmenting the market growth. Additionally, the rising popularity of customized treats and diet plans for cats is also propelling the market growth in Saudi Arabia.

Moreover, the increasing shift towards premium cat food products with better nutritional value is further bolstering the market growth. Besides this, the expanding organized retail sector has enabled consumers to choose between different cat food products and brands in one place, which is expected to foster the market growth in the coming years.
