“The acquisition of MJP will enable us to offer more comprehensive solutions to our customer base, including onsite installation, white glove services, break-fix, and MSP,” said Marc Netka, CEO, STS EDUCATION. “With the tight labor market and our customers struggling to find qualified staff, we believe these services are more important than ever.”

Customers from both companies will benefit from this union because we can now provide the complete array of technology offerings.”

This expansion doubles production and services with a second facility and a larger service team that will benefit schools nationwide.

technology offerings,” said Indy Batra, founder of MJP Technologies. “I am also excited for the benefits to our employees such as more career opportunities, better job security, and additional experience and expertise from a larger leadership foundation.”
