Fans of the spooktacular holiday have said that they're relying on it to lift spirits made melancholy by Melbourne's sixth lockdown. "It's a real triumph of the Halloween spirit," Jason McIntyre, CEO of parent company The Christmas Elves Group, explained. "Several of our customers have told us that they're not letting Covid-19 ruin their Halloween again. They've decided to decorate and celebrate safely, and we want to do everything we can to help them create an unforgettable Halloween."
