Market Overview:

According to the latest report by IMARC Group, titled “Green Cement Market: Global Industry Trends, Share, Size, Growth, Opportunity and Forecast

2021-2026”, the global green cement market reached a value of US$ 24.7 Billion in 2020. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to grow at a CAGR of 13.8% during 2021-2026.

Green Cement Market

Green cement is a cleaner substitute for conventional cement that is manufactured by using industrial by-products such as blast fly ash, furnace slag, aluminosilicates, and recycled industrial waste. It helps in reducing carbon emissions, improving functionality, and minimizing the dependency on raw materials during the production process. Green cement is mainly used in the construction of structural columns, dams, bridges, and buildings that form a part of sustainable architectural programs in various nations.

We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.

Global Green Cement Market Trends:

The expanding construction industry and rising environmental concerns towards high carbon emissions from conventional construction materials are primarily driving the market growth.

Moreover, the increasing consumer consciousness for reducing the detrimental effects of grey or white cement is also augmenting the demand for eco-friendly product variants. Besides this, the implementation of stringent regulations by numerous government bodies across the globe has encouraged the adoption of green cement to construct several industrial, commercial, and residential complexes. Various other factors, including the elevating levels of urbanization and burgeoning demand for public infrastructures, such as office spaces, shopping malls, theatres, hospitals, etc., are expected to further propel the global market for green cement in the coming years.
