

Immigration Professionals Pioneer Soft-Launch of First Independent Platform for Global Migration

Leading immigration lawyers join legal-tech platform to ease burdens of migration, inspire global migration, and cultivate a community of global citizens.

NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, October 19, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Relocate, an independent platform for global migration, provides individuals with a centralized marketplace for relocation. The soft-launch for this #legaltech company features a limited enrollment of experienced immigration practitioners in eleven-countries.

Relocate

Transcend Borders

Relocate is the first independent marketplace for global migration.

The ongoing discourse with leading immigration lawyers is encouraging. There is a common thread of empathy, and a cutting-edge philosophy that brings a fresh perspective to global mobility.”

David Cantor, Founder of Relocate

“There are clear problems to solve in the immigration industry,” added Marek Pałys, Co-Founder of Start-Up House, an award-winning engineering firm based in Warsaw. “From an engineering perspective, this is an extremely interesting challenge for us. Information overload, inefficiency to access relevant information, and a lack of transparency are real barriers for those seeking to relocate—and now we’re on a mission to confront these issues.”

Through Relocate, individuals can easily search and browse through relevant information about relocation; channel inquiries about specific cross-border questions and consult directly with licensed migration professionals to obtain tailored advice. As an independent marketplace, legal advice is provided by qualified legal practitioners and global mobility specialists that each have their own areas of practice.

“We’re extremely honored to be part of this project with so many high-level immigration experts worldwide,” commented Gabriela Lessa, Immigration Partner at Veirano Advogados, a premier Brazilian law firm.

"The onboarding on the website was incredibly easy, responsive and intuitive," commented Mihan Hannan, Managing Partner at Hanan Tew, a cutting-edge Australian law firm.

"Similar to the #fintech movement, there seems to be momentum gaining in areas of #legaltech," said Jürgen Pretsch, research-based scientist and serial expat. "The timing for something like this is really appropriate. The future of work is changing, and governments are finally starting to recognize that immigration pathways are needed for this new generation of digital nomads."

"This is such a refreshing moment for me as well," commented Miho Tanaka, Founder and CEO of Startup Work in Japan. "I hardly meet people trying to solve the complicated immigration procedures around the world. Like the other countries in the world, the Japanese immigration system is like a blackbox."

Relocate has an engineering roadmap that will lead to a full-scale platform early next year.

For the present MVP release, individuals can still explore new destinations, dig-deeper into core topics about relocation, and further understand relocation options based on their needs and preferences. It also features original publications written by migration experts.

"Since our inception, one of the most encouraging aspects to developing Relocate has been our discourse with leading immigration practitioners throughout the world," said David Cantor, U.S. Immigration Lawyer and Founder of Relocate. "There is a common thread of empathy, and a cutting-edge philosophy for providing global mobility services that brings a fresh perspective."
