According to IMARC Group's latest report, titled "Australia Organic Farming Market: Industry Trends, Share, Size, Growth, Opportunity and Forecast 2021-2026", the Australia

Australia Organic Farming Market

organic farming market exhibited strong growth during 2015-2020. Organic farming refers to the method of cultivating crops without using chemical-based fertilizers, pesticides and genetically modified organisms (GMOs). It involves the utilization of green manure, biological pest control, rock additives, and organic waste. It assists in maintaining soil fertility and ecological balance, minimizing pollution and wastage, lowering greenhouse gas emissions, and reducing soil toxicity. As a result, organic farming is gaining traction across Australia.

At present, there is a significant increase in the prevalence of various chronic ailments in Australia. This, in confluence with the increasing awareness about the health benefits associated with the consumption of organically grown fruits and vegetables, is supporting the growth of the market. Besides this, the farmers are inclining towards bio-agricultural practices for enhancing production capacity and improving yield quality, which is acting as another growth-inducing factor. Furthermore, the key players are investing in research and development (R&D) activities to introduce innovative farming techniques with a wide range of advantages. This is projected to propel the market growth in the country. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the Australia organic farming market to continue its strong growth during the next five years.
