The event titled, “Calling All Slug Bugs” attracted over 75 Volkswagen models this year and hundreds of attendees. “

This car show is for our customers and friends who continue to support us through the years, it’s a lot of fun and everyone has a great time celebrating everything about Volkswagen.”

John Luciano, GM/Owner

“We wanted to bring our iconic and classic Volkswagen car show back to life,” John Luciano, Owner & General Manager at Street Volkswagen of Amarillo said. “We were saddened with our decision last year to postpone our event, but we knew that our turnout this year would be the same or better than ever.”

The Volkswagen Car Show officially kicked off with “Caffeine & Cars” at 8am on Saturday, a smaller get together of muscle cars from a local car club. Although, “Calling All Slug Bugs,” attracts only Volkswagen cars, this year anyone with a car was able to show off their vehicle in a separate area.

"We plan to increase our show next year and have two separate shows at the same time," Luciano said. "We want our headliner to be the Volkswagen Car Show but also allow other makes to participate in a separate competition because so many people love to show their hard work."

This year taking top prize, "Best of Show" was John Hanley for his 1971 Volkswagen Karmann Ghia Convertible. "People's Choice" was awarded to Zack Fagan, owner of a 1973 Volkswagen Beetle. Overall Street Volkswagen of Amarillo awarded 22 awards ranging from "Best Camper/Van" to "Farthest Traveled" and many more.

"This car show is for our customers and friends who continue to support us through the years," Luciano said. "It's a lot of fun and everyone has a great time celebrating everything about Volkswagen."
