Market Trends

The growing consumer health concerns towards the high prevalence of obesity, cardiovascular ailments, excessive hair oil, premature skin aging, etc., are propelling the demand for fish oil. Additionally, the escalating adoption of healthier dietary habits is also augmenting the consumption of fish oil in the form of functional food variants and nutritional supplements. Furthermore, the expanding pharmaceutical sector is further catalyzing the demand for bioactive ingredients, such as fish oil, that contains a rich amount of Docosahexaenoic acid

(DHA) and Eicosapentaenoic acid (EPA). Moreover, the growing utilization of fish oil to produce personal grooming products is also contributing to the market growth. Besides this, the rising pet ownership is anticipated to further drive the demand for fish oil to manufacture pet food in the upcoming years.
