Looking forward, the market is expected to grow at a CAGR of around 4% during 2021-2026.

We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.

Cement refers to a fine grey-colored product specifically used for construction purposes. It is manufactured using several materials, including clay, limestone, shale, silica, chalk, gypsum, etc. These materials are heated at raging temperature to form a brick-like substance that is then grounded into fine powder to form cement. In India, cement serves as the prime ingredient for building houses, bridges, dams, flyovers and other residential, commercial and industrial spaces.

Market Trends

The India cement market is primarily propelled by the significant rise in renovation and construction activities due to the growing population and a surging need for residential complexes. The development of several mega infrastructural projects in the country, such as airports and roads, is also driving the growth of the market. Furthermore, with the rising environmental concerns, there has been an escalating demand for green buildings in India. This has resulted in an increased sale of sustainable and green cement as it minimizes the carbon emissions generated during the production process. Besides this, rapid urbanization and inflating purchasing power of consumers, are some of the other factors expected to bolster the product demand in the coming years.
