rigorous quality assurance operations, enabling us to further stress product quality and mitigate risk to meet expectations of clients and end-consumers.”

With PetDine's recent announcement to increase production output at its Harvard, IL, manufacturing facility and with the opening of its Windsor, CO, facility in January 2022, upholding the highest quality standards in all aspects of its pet supplement and treat manufacturing is even more imperative. Led by Miller, the Quality Assurance team will continue to maintain comprehensive quality control and food safety practices, including upholding SQF certification and Animal and Plant Health Inspection Services (APHIS) standards.

"PetDine is never one to rest on its laurels when it comes to helping clients bring superior products to market and doing what is ultimately best for happier, healthier pets," said Tirrel Miller, PetDine Director of Quality. "Mike's skills and experience will instantly strengthen our quality control processes through increased oversight at every level, resulting in maximum product quality outcomes that ensure pet treats and chews are 'made better'."

PetDine ensures highest quality pet supplements and treats with expanded Quality department

Flot earned a Microbiology degree from Colorado State University and has spent his entire career within food safety, quality and health departments for both small food manufacturers and large corporations. He has held management and senior-level positions for various organizations, including Senior Director of Food Safety and Quality with Claremont Foods and Vice President of Food Safety and Quality with Fresca Foods, bringing extensive knowledge to the PetDine Quality Assurance team.
